Zunder integrates its ultra-fast charging network in Spain into Waylet, Repsol's leading mobility app

Zunder, the top-rated ultra-fast charging operator by electric vehicle users in Spain and national leader in ultra-fast charging, will integrate its entire charging network into Waylet, Repsol's leading payment and loyalty app. Thanks to this agreement, the more than 9 million registered Waylet users will be able to charge worry-free across the entire Zunder network, enjoying maximum power and the best user experience.

This agreement strengthens both companies' commitment to promoting electric vehicle use and improving accessibility to the charging infrastructure network across Spain. Through this integration, EV drivers using Waylet will be able to locate, start and stop charging, and pay directly from the app at any of Zunder's 1,200+ charging points. Additionally, Repsol customers who choose to charge at a Zunder station will be able to redeem their Waylet balance to make the charging process more affordable.

Currently, Repsol operates more than 2,600 public charging points in Spain, over 1,000 of which are located at its service stations. These locations offer on-site support during extended hours, 24/7 phone assistance, and a wide range of additional services for users.

Moreover, through interoperability agreements reached via Waylet, Repsol customers can access over 4,700 additional charging points, allowing the multi-energy company to offer a public charging network of more than 7,000 points within a single app.

Launched in 2017, Waylet now has over 9 million registered users. The app allows for fast, secure payments at any Repsol Group station and offers a wide range of additional features: refuel without going to the cashier, manage EV charging, access Repsol Klin car wash and vacuum services, pay for on-street parking in over 22 cities, and shop at a broad network of affiliated retailers (both physical and online), earning credit on purchases to use in the future.

"The integration of Zunder's network into Waylet is a strategic step for our company, reinforcing our position as a leading operator in ultra-fast charging. Access to Waylet users enables us to continue growing, reach new customers who may not yet know our network, and deliver a charging experience that is increasingly seamless and connected," said David Huete, Business Development Director at Zunder.

Meanwhile, Oliver Fernández, Director of Electric Mobility at Repsol, stated: "This partnership with Zunder strengthens our commitment to electric mobility and expands our charging network, offering our customers greater convenience and coverage." He added: "Waylet is a key tool in our electric mobility strategy, and we continue working to provide more options and benefits for our customers."
